FOREWORD

John Richard-Brindsley Norton, 5th Baron Grantley (1855-1943) was universally known as one of the foremost coin collectors of our times. His name was almost as familiar on the Continent as in this country, and his vast knowledge of mediæval numismatics brought him into touch with the great authorities and specialists in Paris, Vienna, Berlin, Copenhagen and Stockholm.

He himself contributed valuable papers to the Numismatic Chronicle, two of which are before me, one "On the North-Humbrian Coinage of A.D. 758-808" (N.C. 1897, pp. 134-144), and the other "On some unique Anglo-Saxon Coins" (N.C. 1900, pp. 148-161).

My earliest recollections of Lord Grantley date from the late eighties of the last century, when he was a keen competitor over Anglo-Saxon and early English coins with such great collectors as Montagu, Murdoch, Sir John Evans, and their contemporaries.

This is not the place, nor is it in my province to characterise the personal qualities of the late Lord Grantley, his dignified presence, charming manner, and exquisite taste which impressed and endeared him to all those who came into contact with him.

During his long life Lord Grantley formed a vast collection of coins, British and Foreign, Oriental, including also Greek, Roman and Byzantine. He collected en masse, and really only specialised in early Anglo-Saxon and Norman Kings. His acquisition of a large number of specimens from the Crondal and Cuerdale finds, comprising an extensive series of Merovingian Tremisses gave his collection a special lustre. His rarities in Northumbrian, Anglo-Saxon, early Norman and Baronial coins were the envy of his co-collectors. Quite a few of these were purchased at the Montagu, Murdoch, Rashleigh, and Carlyon-Britton sales, and some also came from the collection of Sir John Evans.

This vast assemblage of coins (not far short of 60,000) is now to be dispersed under the hammer at Messrs. Glendining's auction rooms.

The sales will take place at regular intervals. The first, of which this is the catalogue, comprises English gold (from Edward III), Scottish and Continental series.

A subsequent sale will include Early British and Gaulish, Anglo-Saxon, Merovingian and Frankish gold and silver coins. A third, English silver, post-conquest. A fourth, the Continental series (silver, copper, etc.). A fifth should include Greek, Roman, Byzantine, Oriental and Foreign coins.

Pressure of work, war restrictions, shortage of paper, etc., lack of reference books, will necessitate brief descriptions of the coins, but it is hoped to illustrate the outstanding rarities in the mediæval series.

Numismatists (collectors and dealers) should be able to fill up, from the Grantley collections, many gaps in their cabinets.
